Summary of Legislation

Starting July 1, 2027, this bill prohibits the immediate release of certain sensitive test results to a patient's electronic health record or patient portal and requires a delay of three business days after the results are finalized. Sensitive test results are defined as certain pathology, radiology, or genetic tests related to cancer. Exceptions to the delay are permitted if the provider authorizes earlier release.

A person who administers and controls the electronic health record has to implement these requirements. However, failing to comply with the requirements does not subject an individual to liability or disciplinary action.

State Expenditures

The bill minimally increases workload in the Division of Professions and Occupations in the Department of Regulatory Agencies to provide outreach and information to health care licensees. Workload may also increase from a rise in complaints. These workload impacts are expected to be minimal and absorbable within existing resources.

Effective Date

The bill takes effect 90 days following adjournment of the General Assembly sine die, assuming no referendum petition is filed.
